More than 340 clinical tests demonstrate the antioxidant effect of molecular hydrogen, making it a prime ally for everyone in the fight against oxidative stress caused by free radicals.

As a result, water enriched with molecular hydrogen has a strong anti-inflammatory action, has the ability protecting be nervous system cells from the effects of negative factors and slows the aging processes.

EFFECTS AND CHARACTERISTICS OF MOLECULAR HYDROGEN

SYNERGY

SIZE. Molecular hydrogen, due to its size, has the ability to penetrate deeply into cells and mitochondria (cells' power plants) and eliminate free radicals from their source.

SELECTIVITY. Unlike other antioxidants molecular hydrogen affects only on the harmful free radicals (hydroxyl) and neutralize them, thus protecting cells from oxidative stress.

SAFETY. An additional important factor of molecular hydrogen is that its excessive consumption does not burden the body, does not cause toxicity, and does not require energy to dissolve it. In contrast to the excessive consumption of other antioxidants, which put a strain on the liver, and therefore the body needs additional energy to split them.

SYNERGY. Molecular hydrogen, directly removing harmful hydroxyl radicals, at the same time activates the natural antioxidant enzymes of the cell (glutathione peroxidase, catalase, dismutase), the so-called cell regeneration agents. This combined action provides long-term protection for the body.

1 HYDROGEN INHALATIONS

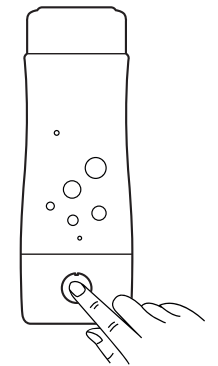

Molecular hydrogen by diffusion easily penetrates the blood — brain barrier, which cannot be said about most antioxidants. For this reason, its use is recommended for disorders and lesions of the nervous system.

The inhaled molecular hydrogen is shown in studies to improve the state of the brain in the following cases: neurodegenerative diseases, insufficient oxygen and blood supply to the tissues, stress, age cognitive disorders injuries, brain damage and etc.

For a 10-minute session, press the start button 3 times, having previously connected the nasal mask to the generator.

2 DRINKING WATER ENRICHED WITH HYDROGEN

* Start-up: press the start button twice in a row to enrich with hydrogen within 5 minutes, by pressing the button three times in a row, hydrogen will be produced for 10 minutes, its concentration in water will be increased.
